1. Introduction

Language is a centre to social interaction in every society, regardless of location and time period. Language and social interaction have a reciprocal relationship: language shapes social interactions and social interactions shape language.

Learning language is getting through the teaching learning process indoor, outdoor, formal or non formal education. Teaching, learning language, sociocultural contexts and variations of language should be considered because it is influenced by the success of the learning a language. The teacher may not neglect the influences of a variety of languages and sociocultural contexts of the participants, especially in mother tongue or foreign language. This is due to the roles to easier the learners to gain the purposes of teaching learning language.

The terms of sociocultural contexts and variations of language may be covered in sociolinguistics study. In order to understand the phenomenon, broad knowledge of the process of language acquisition, second or foreign language education, sociolinguistics, linguistics,
